EDITION

Dear EDUPRIZE Parents,

It was wonderful to see so many of you on campus for conferences; thank you for taking the time to invest in this important partnership. During conferences, you received valuable information, including baseline data, a snapshot of your child's current progress, an STP with specific, personalized goals for the year, and expectations for future growth. We understand that all of this can feel overwhelming, especially with the busyness of family life. However, the elementary years are a powerful predictor of future success, and small routines at home can make a big difference. Throughout the year, we want your child to grow, learn, and become a proficient student at his/her grade level.

The most important things you can do each day to support your child are:

- Ask about their day: what was a challenge, what was a success, what made you laugh, and what made you smile?
- Complete homework: there is always math, math facts, and spelling.
- Read for 20 minutes: this builds fluency, comprehension, and even earns Water Day in May!

By showing interest in your child's learning, you send the message that schoolwork has value and purpose.

If routines are new for your family, now is the perfect time to begin with these three simple steps.

Thank you again for your ongoing support and your commitment to your child's education.

As we head into Labor Day weekend, let's celebrate the hard work accomplished so far and look forward with excitement to all that's ahead.

I hope you and your family enjoy a safe, fun, and restful three-day weekend! Kindly, Robin QUICK
